FamilySearch Revisited

By Andrea Lister

As a follow-up to our September Computer Lab time meeting here are some tips for Family Search.

There is more to FamilySearch than the 1880/1 census.

Library Catalogue

Search the catalog of materials (including microfilm, microfiche, and publications) found at the Family History Library in Salt Lake City, Utah. Many items can be loaned to local Family History Centers around the world.

Some items have been digitized and can be downloaded as a PDF.

1. From your navigation bar type:
<http://www.familysearch.org>.
2. From the Library drop-down menu select Library Catalogue.

3. Search by: place, surname, keyword, title, film, author, subject or call number.

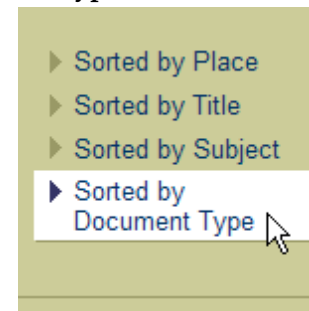

Research Helps

Hit a brick wall? Check out research helps.

1. From the Research Helps drop-down menu select Articles.

2. Click Sorted by Document Type.

There are a variety of guides on: document types, letter-writing guides, maps, research outlines, resource guides, step-by-step guides, and language word lists.

FamilySearch Labs: Record Search

The first thing to remember about FamilySearch Labs is that it is a work in progress. "FamilySearch Labs showcases new family history technologies that aren't ready for prime time. Your feedback will help us refine new ideas and bring them to market sooner." Thus, it changes frequently.

1. From your navigation bar type:
<http://search.labs.familysearch.org/recordsearch/start.html#start>
2. Click Browse our record collection.

3. Click on an area of the world map to see what records are available. Have fun exploring.

Photographers in England

By Annette Fulford

In my collection of photographs I have quite a few albums that were my grandmother's while she lived at Sheffield, England. A few of them include the photographer's names on the back. I have two taken at A. Seaman and Sons in Sheffield.

I located a great website with info on the history of A. Seaman and Sons:

Photographers & Photographic Studios in Derbyshire, England by Brett Payne

Brett Payne also has a blog with more articles about photos and photographers at Photo Sleuth
